III Mindsports GM Super Swiss Open 2023 Report

Dear Chess Community,

It is with great pleasure to announce that the Mindsports Grandmasters Open has been a success! The third edition of titled tournaments at the London Mindsports Centre.

The tournament took place from the 13th - 17th September, and was advertised as a Super Swiss Open tournament. The idea was taken from the 1000GM Las Vegas Super Swiss - credit goes to the 1000GM organisation and the project manager IM Josiah Stearman. The Las Vegas tournament can be found here.

The Mindsports GM Super Swiss achieved an average rating greater than 2400 after the first twenty registrations. An amazing feat! The final field of players included 32 total players with an average rating of 2305, including 5 GMs, 9 IMs, 1 WGM, 5 FMs, & 3 CMs. The starting rank cross table can be found below...

Heading into the 8th round, there were 6 potential title norm opportunities on the line. Going into round 9, there were only 2 opportunities available. It just shows how difficult Swiss tournaments are.

At the conclusion of the tournament, no player title norms were achieved unfortunately! This is the nature of playing in a Swiss Open tournament where the pairings can sometimes be unpredictable and produce some questions.

I would also like to express my gratitude to the Young Chelsea Bridge Club, which provided the venue for the tournament and the chief arbiter - Alan Atkinson for running the event effortlessly. The equipment provided by the London Chess League (John Sargent & Andy Heard). Score sheets, pens, board numbers, fair play equipment, & banners provided by International Arbiter / Organiser Adam Raoof.

The tournament was deemed to be one of the strongest open swiss title norm events in recent times in the UK having obtained an extremely healthy average player rating.

The mission is to keep organising title norm tournaments in the London area and to continue providing title norm opportunities at the highest level for English chess.
